VOL. XIII. NO. 45.

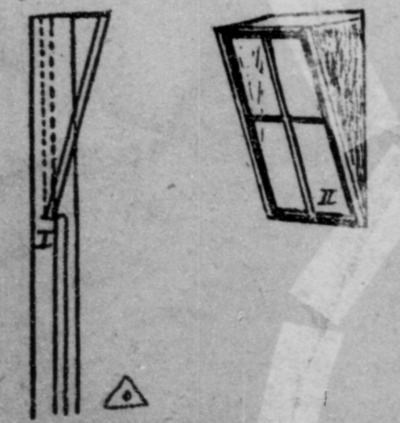

GREENVILLE, KY., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1911.

50c. PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE

Dairy Barns Dark interiors are unwholesome for men or beast. Numerous windows should be cut in barns previously dark, particularly in the south and east and a few in the west side. Use 9 by 13 half sash, hinged at the bottom and opening inward, as shown in the accompanying illustration. The triangular space between the sash and slides should be closed. The sash should be regulated by pins so that it can be opened to whatever extent desired.
The top of the window should be near the ceiling of the stable. Be sure to keep the windows clean.

One way to remove the foul air is to construct round galvanized iron or wooden shafts. The latter should be made of tightly fitting matched boards.
The interior opening of the shafts should be about a foot from the floor, with a flap near the ceiling to be opened and shut, as required. The exterior opening should be several feet above the highest point of the barn roof. The shaft should contain a damper to regulate the outflow. It is difficult without having a particular stable in mind to give specific directions concerning location or the number and the size of shafts. In general it may be said that one large shaft will prove more effective than several small ones. This arrangement, however, must be governed somewhat by the form of the stable.
Allowing some 400 cubic feet of air space for each animal, a 9 by 2 by 2

FOR DAIRY BARN feet, inside measure, should change the air sufficiently often for a stable containing twenty cows. Whenever the construction allows it, the shaft should be placed in the center of the barn.
It should be to place a manure gutter cases, if not along the side of the barn.

Getting Good Cows.
All try to put two different ideas into one head. If you wish a dairy cow, breed and care should be given to the cow, and not to the milk.
It is impossible to secure a good cow by going out into the world and crying, "Co. boss," says a writer in American Cultivator. There are but two ways open—one that of buying and the other that of breeding. Buying is risky even for an experienced man. A woman who loves cows is often a better judge.

In breeding cows the farmer works in partnership with nature, and nature, having a great deal of time, is never in a hurry. As the man dies before the work is fully completed. Having got a good cow, the owner should strive to keep her in that condition. She is not a machine, like a gasoline engine, and she needs a good deal more care. She does well in the spring and summer because she has plenty of food and water.
To do well in the fall and winter she must be kept comfortable and also have plenty of food and water.

Where Tuberculosis Breeds.
Tuberculosis does not find its victims among the scrub cows that browse the roadsides in summer and find shelter behind strawstacks in winter, nor among those who roam in wide, well watered pastures and are housed in barns through whose cracks the snows and winds of winter sift.
It is among the heads whose winter quarters are basement dungeons, where little air and less sunlight find entrance, and those that are warmly housed and highly fed on rations calculated to force the secretion of milk to the utmost limit that the severe losses occur. It is particularly a disease of pampered animals. The highly bred animal is not essentially more susceptible; the fault is with the man who should be "ahead of the cow" instead of "behind her." There are extremes of the inhuman stables of the ignorant and the unnatural conditions maintained by the "scientific breeder." The latter class will be the first to realize their mistake and rectify it.
The former will need a deal of education and demonstration in the line of —Farming.

FRESH WATER FOR POULTRY

Simple Wholesome Arrangement is Shown in Illustration, Insuring Clean Drinking Vessel.

One of the difficult problems for the poultryman to solve is how to easily provide pure, fresh water for his fowls. Many patent fountains which are on the market are automatic and keep before the fowls a certain quantity. Under certain conditions these fountains serve an admirable purpose.
Under more adverse conditions many of these patent contrivances fail to give satisfaction for the simple reason, that it is impossible to keep them clean.

If fowl were fed only whole grain and the weather was always cool, it would be a comparatively easy matter to provide satisfactory automatic drinking fountains, but as soft food forms a considerable portion of the diet for laying hens and fattening fowls, these fountains are necessarily more or less fouled and in warm weather soon become unfit for use as drinking fountains on account of the tainted water and disagreeable odor.

A simple wholesome arrangement may be made as follows: Place an ordinary milk pan on a block or shallow box, the top of which shall be four or five inches from the floor. The water or milk to be drunk by the fowl is to be placed in this pan.
Over the pan is placed a board cover supported on pieces of lath about eight inches long, nailed to the cover so that they are about two inches apart, the lower ends resting upon the box which forms the support of the pan.

In order to drink from the pan it will be necessary for the fowls to in-

Clean Drinking Fountain.

sert their heads between these strips of lath. The cover over the pan and the strips of lath at the sides prevent the fowl from fouling the water in any manner, except in the act of drinking.

Where drinking pans of this kind are used, it is very easy to cleanse and scald them with hot water as occasion demands.
This arrangement can be carried a little further by placing a pan, or what would be still better, a long, narrow dish, something like a tin bread tray, on a low shelf a few inches from the floor, and hinging the cover to one side of the poultry house so that it can be tipped up in front for the removal of the dish or for filling it with water. Whatever device is used, it must be easily cleaned and of free access to the fowls at all times.

EASY TO CAPTURE CHICKENS

Long-Handled Net, Made Out of Old Hammock, Does Away With Chasing Fowls Around Yard.

Who has not seen the farmer, his wife, the hired man, and one or more children engaged in the exciting chase for the chicken which is to be served for the family dinner? All around the yard, over the fence, under the barn, through the garden, until somebody luckily falls upon it. An easier way is to make a long-handled net, using a sound, well made barrel hoop. An Chicken Net.

old hammock makes a fine net for this purpose. The net should be about two feet deep. Lay it down, mouth up, put a few grains of corn on top, pretend you are looking for the other egg, and when a chicken steps on the net to pick up the corn lift it suddenly, tip it slightly to one side, and you have the fowl safe. If you are particularly expert, the net may be dropped down over the bird.

Handling Ducks and Geese.
Always handle ducks and geese by their necks and never by the legs, as fowls are handled, for these limbs are not strong enough to serve as handles and will readily break.

War on Lice.
Make continual war on the lice if your poultry house is infested with them. If free from them, see to it that your premises are kept free.

TAKE The CARDUI Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Mary Neely, of Denver, Tenn., says, "I think there is no tonic on earth, as good as Cardui. I used it with the very best results. I had backache and nearly everything a woman could suffer with, until I took Cardui.
Now, I feel better than I have for two years. I shall always recommend Cardui to other suffering women. I can't praise it too highly. As a medicine for weak, tired, worn-out women, Cardui is safe and reliable. Try it, today.

The inventor of the "free lunch" is dead, but the patrons of his device enjoy perennial existence.

Abdul Hamid's jewels have been sold at auction, and now Portugal has a crown and two and some other appurtenances of royalty she is anxious to sell. There are great times for bargains in crowns and crown jewels.

That Georgia Sheriff who hanged a negro in the local opera house because it was raining outside may have thought that he was doing the spectators a good turn by saving them from a wetting, but such levity of human life cannot be maintained.

Some day the people will realize that they, especially the last of the year, operate more on other cause in migration which and that not so many in the fate of administration supposed to hang upon the New York house and post office. The day the postmaster of the polis was reappointed and cared a continental about after except probably the efficiency itself. Incidentally it may be remarked that his name is Morgan, and that he is said to be a very capable official. Such an episode shows how far the country has traveled since the days of 1881, when President Garfield's appointment to the New York custom house split the Republican party in two and led to Garfield's fatal shot.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is erecting in New York city a free dispensary, with hospital accommodations, for the treatment of afflicted animals. There will also be attached a shelter for homeless dogs and cats. The dispensary and clinic for horses, dogs and cats will be modern in every particular, and stabling also will be provided for horses, though it is the intention to confine this service, so far as possible, to "first aid" cases. There is no finer proof of advanced civilization than the extension of "that mercy we to others show" to the others of the brute creation who are dumb and helpless. There ought to be more cat and dog and horse hospitals in the land. They are schools for that larger charity which finds good in everything and soothing for every woe, whether of man or beast.

Among persons who may be classed as being of normal health and physique, there will, nevertheless, be found variations in recuperative power so great that they can be described only as mysterious.

This capacity for recuperation—for the quick regaining of physical losses—is the normal gift of healthy childhood and youth. What mother has not had the experience of finding one of her brood suddenly and alarmingly ill? Pains all over the body, high temperature, prostration—no wonder she sends for the physician and waits in terror for his diagnosis! If he is wise in the ailments of childhood, he will not venture a diagnosis on that visit, for well he knows that by the next day the illness may prove to be anything—or nothing. He will order medicine for the relief of the immediate symptoms, counsel complete rest and quiet, with insulation from other children, and then await developments. The next morning he will not be surprised to find a well-developed rash, or a serious condition of the throat, or—strange to say—a rosy, healthy child, clamoring for food, and rebelling against the bed that it had crept to so willingly the day before.

In such a case every one concerned has acted just right—the mother, who in her quick alarm, took no chances, but sent for the doctor; the doctor, who, in his wisdom, got ready for war, but did not make it until he understood the challenge offered him; and the child, who unconsciously played the youthful David to the Goliath of disease.

This wonderful power of recuperation, varying as it does with individuals, is essentially a prerogative of youth, and may be expected to wear out normally as age creeps on. In the young the word may be translated "throwing off," so completely do the young fling the enemy from them, but in older people is closer to the correct translation of the word "recuperate"—which means to regain, to get back what has been lost.

We often hear an aging person say, "I am as well as I ever was, but I do recuperate so quickly," and so a mile or two is gradually dropped from the usual walk, or social festivities are cut down, or the tempting trip forgone, because it is found that the bill of repairs is too much to pay for the pleasure. This is natural enough, and therefore not to be deplored. When nature hints, the wise heed and obey, not only to the lengthening of life, but vastly to the enjoyment of it while it lasts.

Winter Health.

A person who says, "I am never so well in the winter as I am in the summer," is very likely to use the tone of one who states a natural law, which must be accepted without question or struggle. The fact of poor health in winter is unfortunately common with many persons; the question is, Need it be?

No doubt more common sense and more self-control is needed to command health through the winter months. The reasons are obvious. In the summer the most inveterate house-dweller is driven into the open air; the hungriest meat-eater calls for fruit and salads; the stuffiest sleeper throws open the bedroom windows. The conditions forced on all of us are, with the exception of extreme humid heat, the conditions that mean health. The result is that many persons who are generally below the level of their best health are at the highest point of physical efficiency in September and October, after their few months of enforced healthful living. From that time on, with the closing of doors and windows, and the resumption of heavy meals, they slip downhill again.

They have no especial theory about the summer regime; it is only that they do what nature forces them to do. Their theories as to the winter regime, on the other hand, are both many and strange. An extreme terror of drafts and damp feet is offset by a callous indifference to stuffy sleeping rooms and reeking public places. Many people pass the entire winter in air unfit to breathe, if the short periods of time during which they are unwillingly outdoors in going from one building to another are excepted. Each cold is promptly laid to the account of these brief journeys—never to bad indoor air, over-eating and lack of proper exercise.

Having wet feet is very easily avoided by persons who do not wish to have them. At the same time, wet feet cannot create gripple unless the gripple germ is there to work with; and perfectly well persons are germ proof persons. That is the goal of all hygienic struggle—to be germ-proof.

As to drafts, they are the most wholesome of things for those who have educated their bodies to them; and since they are unavoidable in a world like this, the sooner a man educates himself to them, the better, although that does not mean that he should hunt for drafts to sit in. When a person feels a shivering from a draft, it is because at that particular moment he is not in a condition to stand it, and nature is giving him a hint to move on.

Mr. James H. Williamson died at his home in New Albany, Miss., last Friday morning, from a complication of ailments incident to his 85 years of age. He was the father of Mrs. R. F. Jarvis, and was well known here, where he made occasional visits.

Revival Meeting.

A revival meeting begins at the Methodist Church Dec. 31, 1911. All Christian people are urged to pray and work for the success of this meeting. Let everyone understand that he has a cordial invitation to be present and take part.

We congratulate the church and the community that an opportunity is given to hear Rev. T. L. Hulsey, who is to do the preaching. He ranks high as a Christian worker in his Conference, and is truly a great preacher. He is a four year man. Methodist will know what this means. He has been preaching for sixteen years and has only served five churches, all of which he has served four years in succession save one. Four years ago after having served Pembroke charge one year he was made presiding elder of the Columbia district, which appointment he held with eminent satisfaction for four years. At our recent Conference a delegation from Pembroke came and asked that he be appointed to that charge. The bishop gave him that appointment. He is one of the most popular pastors and preachers I have ever known. I have no hesitation in saying that the people will be delighted with him.

All Greenville is familiar with the name of Rev. G. W. Lyon, who led the singing at our recent Conference. Don't forget that the "Lyon" is to be here. He is the sweet singer of the old songs our fathers and mothers sang and rejoiced in. Don't forget the date, Dec. 31, 1911.

Greetings to all men in the name of the Christ Jesus.

G. P. DILLON.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. A clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in will look it and act it. He will work with energy, clean, clear, healthy thoughts. He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Contentment.

I take it as I go along That life must have its gloom.
That now and then the sound of song Must fade from every room;
That every heart must know its woe.
Each door death's sable sign.
Care falls to everyone, and so I try to bear with mine.
Misfortune is a part of life;
No one who journeys here Can dodge the bitterness of strife Or pass without a tear.
Love paves the way for us to mourn, Our pleasures breed regret.
One day a sparkling joy is born,
The next—our eyes are wet.
Each life is tintured with the pain Of sorrow and of care.
As now and then comes clouds and rain, Come hours of despair.
And yet the sunshine bursts anew,
And those who weep shall smile, For joy is always breaking through In just a little while.

held on Friday last, such a success.
As this is an impossibility we take this means of expressing our gratitude for the hearty co-operation of the women of the entire community who furnished the many beautiful and useful things sold on this occasion. Not alone to the women are we indebted, but also to the following merchants who came to the front and furnished the lunch served that day: W. H. Brizendine & Co.— coffee; C. M. Howard & Co.— sugar; Joe Long—bread; Coombs' they offered for best dressed doll; Leslie Hale for the use of his tables, and especially are we grateful to the press for the liberal space granted our advertisements in their columns for some weeks preceding sale, and all free of charge.

Several free-will offerings received and these together with results of sales amounted to something over $75.00, which sum coupled with en-

CITY ORDINANCES.

An Ordinance to regulate the use of Septic Tanks in the City of Greenville.

The City Council of the City of Greenville do ordain as follows:

That from and after May 1, 1912, and within a reasonable time thereafter, every occupant or owner of any dwelling in the City of Greenville equipped with water shall construct on said premises a septic tank into which shall be conducted all outflow and sewage from such closets and toilets.

Said tanks shall be constructed of concrete with the top covering not to extend above the surface of the ground, and with walls, floors and coverings to be built not less than six inches in thickness. No tank shall be constructed of less dimensions than five feet in depth, four feet in width and seven feet in length and shall be constructed according to scientific and approved plans and shall be built at the direction and under the supervision of the Street Committee of the City of Greenville.

Any person or persons failing for an unreasonable time to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in the sum of $25.00.

Filed Nov. 10, 1911.
Adopted Dec. 7, 1911.

The I. C. Machinist Strike Settled.

The strike that has been in for about two months on the I. C. system, in which were involved machinists and office men, has been settled, and everything will soon be back in good shape. Efficient help in the mechanical department was hard to secure, and but for the many hundreds of men who remained in the various shops, vast damage would have resulted to the engines and rolling stock for want of attention. Much inconvenience followed as it was. The men lost their contention for the recognition of the federation, but returned to work on the same basis as obtained when the strike was called. In this district the most important point affected was Paducah, where about 1,000 men were out, and they are practically all on again.

We are prepared to make attractive prices to parties wanting

Arthur B. Lovell Dead.

Arthur B. Lovell, in his 32nd year, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jane Lovell, east of town, last Wednesday night, after an illness of ten days from complicated heart trouble. His condition had been serious from the beginning, and all efforts to correct the trouble were unavailing. There was no more popular young man in the community than Arthur Lovell, and none more worthy of the general esteem in which he was held. Quiet, clever, accommodating, he was an exemplary man in every respect. Rev. G. P. Dillon conducted a short service at the home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and interment followed in Evergreen cemetery. Messrs. Fred Head, Bernie Shutt, John S. Brizendine, Leslie Shutt, Ray Morgan and Marvin Wells were the pallbearers, and there was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Besides his mother he is survived by three sisters and three brothers.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Do not forget the election of Board members on next Tuesday at the building. The following are nominees: T. N. Belcher, John Brizendine, A. W. Duncan, Leslie Hale, H. C. Lewis, M. B. McDonald, Paul Pannell, J. F. Reynolds, Jr. and C. W. Taylor. There are to be five elected, one for two years and four for three years. Every active member of the association should be on hand to vote.

The Bible classes will not meet next Sunday because of Xmas. But will meet on the 30th, of Dec. In the contest the Intermediates and Juniors are tied for first place. The standing is as follows: Intermediates, 185 points; Juniors, 185 points; Seniors, 80 points.

Margaret Elizabeth Wickliffe.

Margaret Elizabeth Wickliffe, widow of the late Charles Wickliffe, died at her home near the depot at midnight Saturday, after an illness of many weeks from complications incident to her age, she being in her 84th year. She was well known over the county, and was one of the pioneers. Her home had always been the center of hospitality and good cheer, and it was a rare treat to be privileged to enjoy the sociability of this home. She is survived by her daughter, Miss Nannie Wickliffe, and by two sons, Charles and Robert, and by a wide connection here and over the county. A short funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dillon at the home at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, attended by many friends, who followed the remains to Evergreen cemetery, where interment was made beside the body of her husband in the family lot. Aunt Margaret was one of the most beloved women of the town, and she will be mourned by a large circle.

The new 1,000 class freight engines just put in service on this division are the latest in the motor line, and are attracting much attention. There are five now in service, and the order is for fifteen for the Louisville Paducah division.

The members of the General Baptist church here and near by are planning to organize and build a church in town. There are quite a number of persons interested, and it is likely the building will be erected next year.

Heavy Tobacco Deliveries.

This week has been the heaviest in years in tobacco deliveries, more than 300 loads having been brought to the various factories. By sun-up Monday the streets were lined with wagons, and the rush continued all day. It is estimated that $30,000 has been paid out the three days this week.

Give us your job work.

Rev. W. C. Hayes will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist church next Sunday morning and evening.

Charles B. Summers Dead.

Mr. Charles B. Summers, in his 32nd year, died at Luzerne at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Gibbs, parents of his wife, Monday midnight, after an illness of several months from Bright's disease. He was the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Summers, of Earles, and was popular at his old home as well as with the men at Luzerne, where he was employed with the W. G. Duncan Coal Co. His wife and two children survive. Rev. G. P. Dillon conducted a short service at the home at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and the body was conveyed to the family graveyard at Earles, where interment was made at 2 o'clock, many friends attending.
